Professional Designation Support

This program includes support for those students working towards the Canadian Professional Counsellors Association's (CPCA) Registered Professional Counsellor designation (RPC).

Relevant curriculum in the Professional Counsellor Diploma program meets the CPCA's rigorous academic criteria, and students may write the RPC examination after completing their program.

The Professional Practice and Ethics includes examination specific information and preparation. Rhodes Wellness College schedules and provides testing facilities for students to write the RPC examination at the end of this unit.

Graduates who successfully write their RPC examination must also complete a period of supervised practice before receiving their full RPC designation. When becoming a member of a counselling association, such as the Canadian Professional Counsellors Association or the Association of Cooperative Counselling Therapists of Canada, graduates initially apply for candidacy membership. To support graduates successfully completing candidacy and obtain other levels of membership sooner, Rhodes Wellness College provides them 12 sponsored postgraduate supervision sessions for 12 months upon completion of their Professional Counsellor Diploma program.

About the Registered Professional Counsellor Designation

The Canadian Professional Counsellors Association (CPCA), a Canadian non-profit Society registered in accordance with the National Corporate Registry of Canada, regulates Registered Professional Counsellors.

Since its founding in 1990, the CPCA has been dedicated to the promotion of public confidence and trust in the counselling profession in Canada. The CPCA serves the public from coast to coast.

Registered Professional Counsellors attend to the emotional wellbeing of people by applying principles and skills from the disciplines of mental health, psychology or human development, through the use of cognitive, affective, behavioural or systemic interventions. Through these interventions the RPC can address wellness, personal growth, or career development, as well as pathology. In preparation for this challenging career, an RPC must undergo extensive education and training. This includes both academics and field training. RPC's serve in all levels of our communities where the helping profession is required - at schools and universities, in hospitals, mental health agencies, rehabilitation facilities, business and industry, correctional institutions, religious organizations, community centres and private practice.
